Grand Master Mason of Scotland. The historic photo of the future King sitting on a bench with Grand Lodge Office-bearers (including James Grieve a member of 579) was replicated on the day, using the same bench that the future Grand Master and King used for the photo. The Lodge opened a small museum which has the sederunt book signed Albert as the future King signed his name.

Interestingly, during the period around the 1745 the Lodge was closed as the Master and members of the Lodge were fighting for the Stuart cause. The Master fought in the final battle at Culloden in 1746 and it was not for another ten years that the Lodge sought permission to reopen.
